

Migglepup Mansion Must Go!

Have you ever dreamed of living on another planet? Would you love to live next door to an alien? Then look no further than the stunning new house which has just come up for sale on the planet of Migglepup.

Perfectly located between the famous Zing crater and the rocky hills of Pipple, this beautiful house is made from the finest asteroid rock and was built to last for thousands of years.

For your peace of mind, this luxury house has the best security features available on the market. The sturdy, metal front door can be unlocked with tentacle-print technology, or will scan one of your many eyeballs to allow you to enter.

Q1: Which two features is the house located between?

Q2: Why did the author choose to start this text with questions?

Q3: Why might someone dream of living in space?

Once inside the house, every room you enter will impress you. This spacious home has two large, modern bathrooms, complete with sonic showers and automated tentacle slimers! What a dream!

The huge kitchen upstairs is perfect for preparing the finest quality waste for your great family of messy eaters. With a double bin for storing food and no space wasted on ancient fridges and freezers, you will easily find space for a whole week's worth of rubbish to nibble on.

Wait – that's not all! With twelve generous bedrooms to choose from, you could sleep in a different room each day. Each bedroom has a roomy, comfortable pod for sleeping in and lots of bright, dazzling lights to help you sleep all through the day.

Q4: How many bedrooms does the house have?

Q5: Find and copy three adjectives from the text which mean the same as 'large'.

Q6a: How is a bathroom on Migglespop similar to the bathroom at your house?

Q6b: How is a bathroom on Migglespop different to the bathroom at your house?

Q7: Do you think the creatures that live on Migglepop are clean beings? Explain your answer using evidence from the text.

This house has wasted no space with boring and pointless windows. Instead, every wall is tastefully decorated with calm and relaxing colours, such as luminous yellow and lime green. This will help you to feel rested as you watch your favourite films inside your film-o-goggles.

Are you wondering where you will be able to keep your flying saucers? Well, worry not! The five garages attached to the roof have plenty of room for every family member's spaceship. Phew!

This magnificent house is guaranteed to sell quickly. Make sure to call today and book your visit to the most exclusive house in the solar system.

Q8: Why might people on Migglepop think that windows are 'boring and pointless'?

Q9: Why do Migglepop garages need to be on the roof?

Q10: How has the author tried to make the house appealing to readers?

Q11: What do you think is the main point of this text?
